THE REMEMBER ME, A RELIGIOUS AND LITERARY MISCELLANY, PUBLISHED ANNUALLY BY E. LITTELL, CHESNUT-STREET, PHILADA

The favorable reception which has been given by the public, to the beautiful little annual volumes which have for the last years issued from the press, as gifts for the festive season of winter, under the names of Souvenirs, Tokens, Annals, Keepsakes, &c., induces the belief that something in the same style and manner, but calculated to produce more important effects, and more durable impressions, would be acceptable. "Christians," it has been well said, should not neglect the lesser opportunities of doing good. It is proposed therefore to prepare such a volume as religious parents and friends would be willing, and not only willing, but desirous to place in the hands of their youthful connections, as, at the same time, a pleasing and an instructive gift. Every exertion will be made to procure for this work, articles which shall exhibit not only unexceptionable talent, but the pure truths of our holy religion; the value and beauty of religious example; the consolations produced by the practice of piety; the comforts and advantages of devotion. With these will be blended such lighter articles as shall not be inconsistent with them, and may serve to attract attention to them. It will be, in fact, a Christian Remembrancer. No effort or expense will be spared, that the illustrations, materials, and typographical execution, shall be equal to the kind. A liberal compensation will be given for suitable articles, and some of the best talents in the country have been invited to contribute to its pages.

Communications of articles suitable for the work are solicited, and may be addressed to the Editor of The Remembrancer—care of the publisher.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

"Remember Me," for 1829.—A beautiful little annual under this title is just published in this city. It furnishes a charming specimen of that felicitous union of exquisite finish in the art, and of refined taste and beauty of composition, with the sacred and precious subjects of religion, which we have always considered far within the reach of possibility, but which, till now, has been almost entirely left an unthought mine of most costly and glorious gems. This first religious annual proposed to have descended no other than to the very upper surface of this nation's treasures, and yet it presents a mirror of an unseen heaven.

Some of its poetry is very exquisite. "The Church," by professor Doane, possesses singular beauty to William's "Church," in its passionate and heavenly poetry. Life would be both better and happier if there were more such poetry in all hearts capable of such lofty imaginations. "A Birth-day Hymn," signed J. K. N. is sweet enough to delight the first order mind, and yet just simple and touching enough to win the heart of a child. Of its stories, "The Last Child" and "Christianity in Athens," are the best that we have yet read, and altogether they are very interesting and instructive.

Christian parents, you have no need to trouble, lest this elegant little volume should find a mortal pestilence from between its silver covers and gilded leaves. It is not a beautiful vanity; it is rather a very useful gem, not so atom the worth for being exquisitely polished.

From the New-York Daily Advertiser.

We have received a specimen of this elegant little work from the proprietor, Mr. Littell, of Philadelphia, and much admire its appearance and style of execution. The prints are by American artists, and are highly finished specimens of the art. The frontispiece, which is a colored copy of Delaune's "Grecian Mother," is a most interesting and highly spirited composition. It represents a scene of a descriptive landscape frequent in the law war in the Alps—a young and beautiful female, set on the opposite peak of a rock, with her child asleep at her side, as if with the labor of the ascent, while some distance below is seen a desolate engagement between a few of her countrymen and a band of barbarian invaders. She is represented in the foreground, watching with intense anxiety the issue of the conflict, prepared to destroy her infant and herself rather than fall into the power of the enemy. In point of materials and typographical execution, this book may challenge a comparison with some of the best of the English works of a similar character.

From the Washington Telegraph.

Such a work has long been wanted. We wish it an extensive circulation, and recommend it to all parents who have the least regard for the welfare of their children, to obtain for them this, in preference to any other work of the kind published in the country.

From the Friend.

"The Remember Me," just published in this city, has, we think, decided claims to patronage. The publisher has pretty fully effected the plan announced in his prospectus, of producing "a volume, such as religious parents and friends would be willing, and not only willing, but desirous to place in the hands of their youthful connections, as, at the same time, a pleasing and instructive gift." Of the various articles with which the volume is made up, so far as a layman's eye has qualified us to determine, the tendency is uniformly moral and religious; and the engraved decorations, eight in number, including the exquisitely delicate title in gold, are interesting specimens of the progress of the art in America.

THE RELIGIOUS MAGAZINE; OR, Spirit of the Foreign Theological Journals and Reviews;

Is published monthly, at Six Dollars a year, by

E. LITTELL, CHESNUT-STREET, PHILADA.

It is composed of the best articles in the Foreign Theological Journals, Reviews and Magazines, and the quantity of matter is about equal to five of the ordinary Religious Magazines. The selections are carefully made, with a reference solely to the merit of the papers, and their tendency to advance the interests of pure evangelical religion. No article which can afford grounds of offence to any orthodox protestant denomination, will, at any time, be admitted.

Having access to all the sources of literary information, we shall be able to give our readers an early account of every new work which will tend to practical improvement, or increase the stock of theological learning.

Every article in the work is submitted to and approved by clergymen of the Episcopal, Presbyterian, Methodist, and Baptist churches.

It began in January, 1828.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

"We believe that more judicious selections from the foreign journals, so far as we are able to judge, could not well be made. Notwithstanding the great number of articles introduced, and consequently a corresponding number of reviews, the language throughout is chaste, bold, and commanding. And we cannot but think that if the work maintain the favorable reputation that it has already acquired, it will in time have a most important bearing on the interests of Christianity."—Christian Advocate and Journal of New-York.

From the "Magazine of the Reformed Dutch Church," published in New-York, and edited by the Rev. W. C. Bronck, D.D.

"We venture to recommend it to persons of piety and cultivated literary taste, as an estimable and judicious collection of all the choicest pieces which adorn the respective Theological Journals of Great Britain. Every article, generally speaking, may be viewed as a highly finished piece, and the entire work will be made up of such pieces in prose and verse."

"We have no hesitation in recommending the work to the consideration and patronage of the religious public. Every number of the Gospel, especially, should, if possible, procure a copy of this Magazine."—Baptist Advocate, Bloomfield, (Ky.).

"It presents its readers with the best articles from the best Foreign Religious periodicals; and as often, the most eminent in theological science, and in literature, that Great Britain can boast, are contributors to one or other of them; we think that Mr. Littell's enterprise cannot fail to be rewarded."—Liberty Daily Advertiser.

"This valuable publication, which we have heretofore noticed, gratifies the hopes of those who wished to see a valuable compendium of foreign religious essays, impartially conducted, and free from a sectarian character. It has already received the support of some of the clergymen of this city, of various denominations; and we have no doubt will meet with support from the citizens generally."—New-York Daily Advertiser.

"We feel it a duty to recommend it to the notice of our readers."—New-York Observer.

"We highly commend the liberal spirit displayed in the plan of this work, and having examined the first three numbers, and from which, at different times, we have transferred several selections to our pages, we are confirmed in the opinion, that this work is likely to prove a valuable accession to the list of useful publications. We have been gratified to perceive concurrent testimonials in its favor by other editors."—The Friend.

"The selection of the pieces, and the style in which it is executed, will give this Magazine a high rank among publications of this character, and render it extensively useful to the country."—Foster and Taggart, Richmond, Va.

"We recommend it to the public patronage, as an unexceptionable source of instruction and entertainment. Lighter articles, blended with the more learned and profound, occasional illustrations of scripture, with papers on Biblical criticism, and extensive selections of reviews of new works, seriously entitle it to this character."—Church Register.
